everything

Jevason was born with clubfoot, a common condition that occurs in hundreds of thousands of newborn children all over the world. His feet were so deformed that without medical intervention this little Kenyan would never walk like a child with normal feet.

His mother blamed herself, thinking somehow she was responsible for her child's deformity. She also questioned God, wondering why he had given her a disabled child.

Soon after her son's birth, the mother heard about a possible solution to Jevason's clubfoot from the nurses at his birth hospital. She was directed to a local clinic run by CURE International's CURE Clubfoot Worldwide program.

At first, Jevason's mother was resistant to the care offered to her child. But she was eventually convinced to let the medical experts at the clinic treat her son.

Jevason's feet underwent a simple yet sophisticated casting procedure that began to reverse the effects of the clubfoot.

The first time she saw the positive results of the treatment, Jevason's mother could not believe her eyes. Her doubt disappeared. She stopped blaming herself for her son's condition and started believing that he could be healed.

Because of CURE Clubfoot Worldwide, this child now has an opportunity to take his first steps toward a normal life.

Jevason's mother adjusts her son's braces, which are part of the treatment process which will help straighten his feet.
